Yes, there were many that returned as they sprayed while the employees were working. Ex. 6 PP / Ex. 7(C) was training in a conference room and the applicator told the group to take their break and come back that he should be done by then. They returned after 10 minutes. At no time was the building closed down for cleaning. You can look at the time's on the sprays and keep in mind that Northrop Grumman operated from 7:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M. and employees stayed there after cleaning up after the day. The State of Wyoming operated from 8:00 A.M. to 5:00 P.M. On the State of Wyoming side one of the employees, Ex. 6 PP / Ex. 7(C) said that Jan Stall (State of Wyoming) told her to leave our area because they were going to spray. She left for lunch and came right back. Also, another employee worked and was not even told to leave.

Thanks,

Thanks so much. I had another inspector reviewing stuff with me today. There are several applications...after each application, did employees return to their desks before the pesticide had dried?

Hey Sherrie,
There is many more pages to the Agriculture inspection that we sent you today. We also included letters that were sent to Prest-X and reported statements from the Presto-X employee as well as Mr. Higgins (the manager) of Presto-X. We mailed it second day mail, so you should have it by the time you get back.

Thank you again,
